Welcome to asking questions and (trying) to give answers!

Why do we ask questions?
What are we doing when we ask questions and give answers?
How do you know that a claim is true?
Are our claims about our ideas or are they about reality?
Why are some actions bad and others good?
Do you ever wonder what makes you you?
Why should we care about one another?
Do non-human animals have minds?
Why not socialism?
Is this real or am I dreaming?

This course will be a playground for ideas. We will ask questions: some from texts, some from movies, and many others from you. We will explore some of the ways that people have thought about minds, reality, morality, sex, class, and much more. If you are willing to gamble and share your views, if you are curious about your world, its people and their practices come and join us!
