Here is what Janet Polasky, a Women’s Studies Core Faculty member, has been working on!

Janet Polasky has been hard at work in the History Department. In September she presented at a conference in Prague about comparative and transnational urban history in England, lectured on the social history of Belgian politics at the Belgian Parliament, and worked in archives in The Hague, Brussels, Liege, and Louvain. Janet has recently finished a book that should appear next year entitled Revolutions Without Borders, and also started a new book on cosmopolitan revolution in small countries between the American and French revolutions. She is proposing a new two semester team-taught course with Jeannie Sowers in political science on revolutions, from 1549 to the present.

Check out Janet Polasky’s Spring 2013 class:

HIST 652 European Revolution, Gender, and Politics, 1750-2013

---

Upcoming Event

Resumè & Cover Letter Workshop:

Tuesday Dec. 4th, 12-2pm, WS Office