

With so many opportunities available at this University, it's hard not to want to do them all. Many students come to UNH looking to major in something other than theatre, but still want the chance to take classes in this great department. If this sounds like you, a theatre minor might be what you are looking for.

"Pyramids, cathedrals, and rockets exist not because of geometry, theories of structures, or thermodynamics, but because they were first a picture-- literally a vision--in the minds of those who built them. Society is where it is today because people had the perception; the images and the imagination; the creativity that the Arts provide to make the world the place we live in today."

—Eugene Ferguson, Historian

A minor acknowledges a level of competence and academic focus without the depth a major requires. Students may pursue a minor while majoring in another subject when the demands of that major prevent the possibility of a double major.

For additional information on the Theatre degree program with an option in Design visit: <https://bit.ly/MinorOption> or Contact Mike Wood
Mike.Wood@unh.edu

As a theatre minor, enjoy similar opportunities which are available to majors such as: auditioning and participating in productions, attending master classes, student teaching opportunities, and so much more...

MUSICAL THEATRE MINOR

The musical theatre minor offers the student basic knowledge of the history and canon of this uniquely American art form while providing for hands-on experience in both singing and dancing. Students who major in theatre or one if its theatre or dance options may minor in musical theatre provided no more than 8 credits are used to satisfy both major and minor requirements.

ARTS ADMINISTRATION MINOR

The minor in arts administration is designed to give students in the fine and performing arts a base knowledge and skill set that can be applied to a wide range of job opportunities related to arts management and administration. It has also been created for students enrolled in the Peter T. Paul School of Business, as well as majors in other disciplines, to expand their knowledge base in the fine and performing arts area of their greatest interest. These courses are combined with specific classes in arts administration to prepare students for opportunities within the non-profit and for-profit arts sectors. Students who major in theatre or one if its theatre or dance options may minor in arts administration provided no more than 8 credits are used to satisfy both major and minor requirements.

THEATRE MINOR

The theatre minor provides the broadest overview of the discipline, allowing students to create their course of study by exploring theory and technique classes from acting, design and theatre technology, and history. Students who major in theatre or one if its theatre or dance options may minor in theatre provided no more than 8 credits are used to satisfy both major and minor requirements.

YOUTH DRAMA MINOR

Anyone with an interest in theatre for young audiences, either in acting or as a way to augment teaching strategies, will benefit from this minor, which utilizes activated and arts-infused methodology to enliven work with K-12 students. The youth drama minor is ideal for those who wish to explore the dramatic arts through an educational lens.

DANCE MINOR

Students minoring in dance keep open the option of pursuing a career in dance by cultivating and maintaining a high level of dance skill while still having the opportunity to major in another area of interest outside the Department of Theatre and Dance. Minors are encouraged to audition for all performance opportunities including faculty-directed dance concerts as well as student-created dance showcases. In addition, students who major in theatre or one of its theatre options may minor in dance provided no more than 8 credits are used to satisfy both major and minor requirements.

Our faculty are actively working as professionals in the industry. They have won multiple major awards and have had their work displayed all over the world.

To learn more about our programming and see our faculty profiles, please visit our website:

<http://cola.unh.edu/theatre-dance>