

University of New Hampshire
College of Liberal Arts

HUMANITIES

DEGREE OPTIONS

Humanities dual major

The humanities asks, “what does it mean to be human?” As a humanities dual major, you will explore the fundamental questions of human existence — alongside your primary major. For answers, you will look everywhere: from Greek tragedies, postmodern novels and High Renaissance sculpture to pop art, baroque music and contemporary psychological and social theories. Humanities students are in the company of scientists, artists, musicians, historians, revolutionaries, philosophers and writers who, for thousands of years, have been engaged in the same quest. To guide students on this journey are faculty members across disciplines in the College of Liberal Arts, from theatre, English, history, Spanish, art, philosophy and more. Join them for the conversation and education of a lifetime.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

Small, intensive seminars and team-taught courses

One-on-one work with faculty to develop a project of your choice

Spring study abroad in Budapest, Hungary, designed for humanities students and led by faculty

Dual major complements and enhances your main area of study

TOPICS YOU MAY STUDY

Sex and love in literature and philosophy

Interdisciplinary introductions to the ancient, medieval and modern worlds

Interdisciplinary introductions to global humanities

Humanities and the law

Slavery and freedom in literature and philosophy

Humanities and science

Travel in the premodern world

Humanities and religion

“As a humanities major, I don’t have to limit myself to just one subject. I am able to read and explore many different ideas throughout many different time periods. I love reading history through the lense of philosophy, art and other documents.”

— JULIANA PURVIS ‘19

Department of Classics, Humanities and Italian Studies

316 Murkland Hall, 15 Library Way, Durham, NH 03824

Phone: (603) 862-3522

Website: cola.unh.edu/classics-humanities-italian-studies

AS A HUMANITIES DUAL MAJOR, AMONG YOUR POTENTIAL
CAREERS ARE:

Communications director

Content strategist

Intelligence analyst

Lawyer

Marketing professional

Nonprofit administrator

Public policy maker

Writer