COMMUNITY ART PROJECT

FREE AND OPEN TO ALL UNH STUDENTS

February 2022

- Are you interested in being a part of an effort to address racial justice and healing on UNH's campus?
 - Do you want the opportunity to be a part of something that brings together all student members of the UNH community to produce a beautiful project where all participants contributed to its vision, goal and outcome?

If so, we encourage you to consider participating in UNH's Black History Month community art project which will occur throughout the month of February, 2022. This program is led by Richard Haynes - sponsored by Community, Equity and Diversity.

This cohort experience brings together students from all identities and backgrounds to create a collective art piece.
